A Very special thank-you to John Courtmanche. His inspiration gave me determination.

Forever hold in your hearts all those elements of being young — optimism, passion, innocence, love, lack of limits. Believe in these qualities and in yourselves. Never forget who you are, what you have done, and most importantly, what you can do in the future. Never stop trying to live and never stop fighting for your ideals. If you are not pushing forward, you are stuck in the past. However, remember what you learn in your youth, remember what you feel. When you look back to Fairfield University, do not regret what you have left behind. Do not fight the past, use it! Always stay — forever young . . .

INTRODUCTION

Hi! I guess this is where I introduce the Manor Yearbook to the Class of 1991. I also have been told that this article gives me the opportunity to reveal the theme of this year's book. I have to have a theme, Huh? I tried to find a snappy motif that I could use throughout the book but I wasn't satisfied with the typical yearbook themes that you may find in any high school book. Well, being a Chemistry major with minors in biology and mathematics, I'm not exactly the original, creative type. Heck, I'm not even the creative writer type, as you could probably tell from this article. Anyway, what it comes down to is that I don't really have a theme. The connective thread that I use to tie this book together; however, is the "COLLEGE COMIC".

The "COLLEGE COMIC" highlights the different aspects of college life. This comic strip, that will be seen throughout the book, was skillfully drawn and created by Bill Walko. When I thought about what a yearbook should be, I thought of memories. Memories of what it was like during probably the four most important years of my life. So in order to remember what was important to me, as the typical college student (or not so typical in my case), I have designed a college-like formula, a comic strip. This continuing comic strip deals with the attitude and activities of a college student. I hope this helps to jerk a few memories and happy thoughts of college days and nights at Fairfield University. At least I hope to get a few smiles.

I guess I'd also like to take this opportunity to thank all of those people that helped me put this book together. I didn't have a large staff but it was quality rather than quantity. I hope the book meets your expectations and that you enjoy your trip down memory lane as you peruse the pages of the Manor 1991 . . . "THE COMIC OF COLLEGE".

DIANNE NOLAN

The scoreboard in Alumni Hall read 88-87. But this Alumni Hall was in Providence, Rhode Island and the Lady Stags basketball team had just been defeated by PC in the opening round of the 1991 Women's NCAA Basketball Tournament. The Fairfield fans and alumni in attendance, though disappointed, felt a sense of pride in the performance and accomplishment of Coach Dianne Nolan, her staff and the players.

Dianne Nolan has been the primary catalyst for the success achieved by the women's basketball program during her 12 years at Fairfield. Since arriving on campus in 1979, Coach Nolan has instilled a combination of pride and determination in all her female athletes. She has turned the basketball court into her own classroom and the end result has been the most successful athletic program in the history of Fairfield athletics.

Due to her commitment to Fairfield University and the young women and coaches who have been involved with her program, the 1991 Manor is dedicated to Dianne Nolan.

WHAT A TOWN!

In our four years at Fairfield, we have all seen and frequented many popular places. This layout spread is dedicated to the familiar places that each of us wishes we could still see everyday. Places like Dominoes, Tommy's, and Dunkin Donuts, even though they seemed insignificant when we patronized them, they made a lasting impression on all of us and definitely made our college careers more bearable. So here's to The Big One, the Big Mac and the Big Deals at Super D. Thanks for making college what it was!

What Exactly Are These Jesuit Ideals!

When each of us was accepted at Fairfield University did we actually decide to attend such a college because we thought that the infamous Jesuit ideals would make us into who we are? Come on! I was on those tours too, where the burning question wasn't "How did religion affect your college career?", but rather, "Do they really have good parties here?"

This year Campus Ministry has gone through many changes, some controversial and some not. A new Campus Ministry Council was formed, the Ignatian Year was celebrated, a female minister resigned, and above all a new Chapel was opened. The Egan Chapel of St. Ignatius Loyola was opened in the fall but not without causing some protests on campus. Since the bishop refused to allow women on the altar during the ceremony, much of the Fairfield community was up in arms and Paula Oddis objected publicly. Paula resigned soon after the incident for her own reasons and the campus ministry team sorely missed such a hard-working, dedicated woman.

Although there were some disagreements over the year, overall the year was a community-service-success, not to mention those Jesuit ideals could be easily understood through the work of many students. Jesuit ideals, as I have come to understand them, are not rules on how to be Christianlike; but rather feelings, good feelings. These ideals are the hopes in each of our hearts that we can make a difference and that only we can make ourselves good people. In soup kitchens, as big brothers, in Ecuador, in Appalachia, as lectors, as volunteers, or just as friends, we all have made a difference. In my opinion, the Jesuit ideals are instilled in each of us whether we consider ourselves religious or not. All the Fairfield students I know, care, they care about each other and what is going on around them and they always do what they can to help, so guess what guys . . . whether you know it or not, you did catch the fever at Fairfield . . . the Jesuit fever!

Should we really choose the path of least resistance? Did St. Ignatius?

Allow me to offer some imponderables for your reflection, some weightier than others—

—What is the purpose of the warning label on a mattress, and what happens if I rip it off?

—If nothing sticks to Teflon, how do they get Teflon to stick to the pan?

—Why are hamburger bun bottoms so thin?

—What is love?

As 34 Fairfield mission volunteers — students, faculty and administrators travel to Ecuador, Jamaica and Haiti, we have the opportunity to consider What is love? These Mission Volunteers, like students going to Appalachia as volunteers or joining the Jesuit Volunteer Corps have to respond to the often asked question, Why? To those who participate in these programs of service, it is clear that these experiences have more to do with what is received than what is given.

One author describes such experiences as "going with God", as opposed to "being careful". We can't do both, we can't be careful and go with God. Going with God is an experience of love to the extreme, following Jesus into a world filled with brokenness and uncertainty.

Going with God is the discipleship of being with our neighbor wherever they are: it is to be with the poor and the displaced, the people at the back of the line; whether it be on East Main Street in Bridgeport, Duran, Ecuador, Kingston, Jamaica, or Port-auPrince, Haiti.

Going with God is to walk with and not ahead of our brothers and sisters. Many of us have done this during the past year and we realize that our love is not abstract, but is etched in the faces, eyes and hearts of those many people we have drawn near to. We know that when we have loved someone, we have seen the face of God.

Gradually the powerful and unsettling implications of going with God become clearer. As we serve in soup kitchens, visit shelters, do volunteer work in Third World countries we struggle with the haunting question, But when will some of us stay?

For all we do now in loving service, we return; we return to campus, to family and friends.

The dedication of the Egan Chapel of St. Ignatius Loyola brought with it, not only a new view of religion, but a new look at the church itself.

lawns on us that there cannot be two Christian loves, one for the oes and one for the rest; there is only one Christian love and it kes heroes of us all. "There is no greater love than this, to lay wn one's life for one's friends."

s the love described by Emily Dickinson: "Love is the fellow of resurrection scooping up the dust and chanting 'Live.' " r Mission Volunteers travel to places where there is 80% illiteracy, fe expectancy of 47 years, and 60% of the children are mal- urished, to see, to feel, to be with so that none of us can forget, e of us can go on with business as usual.

r Mission Volunteers go with God to witness with their time that e is all we have, it's all that matters and if we wait until we love fectly like Ozzi and Harriet, or wait until people deserve our love, ve measure love safely in teaspoons, or control our love like a rmostat/hot and cold, love will never happen, we will miss the t shot we have at living a meaningful life. Life will have slipped ay, passed us by.

e alone saves us, love alone redeems our world, not perfect love, vulnerable love, that allows us to turn to one another with open ns as brothers and sisters and not like armed warriors ready for tle.

our great imponderable, What is love? becomes known in our ly living, in our risk taking and in our going with God.

y all of us go with God, wherever that may be, whether it is back New Jersey, Los Angeles, Chicago or Ecuador, let us all go with d.

CHILDREN OF PARENTS WTH AIDS

AIDS affects our society in many harsh and frightful ways. Over the last years we have seen this disease through its many victims and various tragedies. Each Wednesday a group of Fairfield University students experience AIDS from a unique standpoint: Through the eyes of the children.

The support group for children whose parents have AIDS started two years ago at the St. Charles Urban Retreat House in Bridgeport. Since then, it has grown immensely and is still the only program of its kind in the United States. Students travel to Bridgeport to play with, talk with and befriend the now 25 children (ages 1 year to 18 years). Adaline DeMarrais, the founder of the group, is currently working on a children's book about AIDS written from notes and stories of the children in this group.

Although the group is still getting off the ground and constantly looking for friends, it has been a rewarding experience for all involved, and hopefully it will continue to spawn more groups of its kind in other communities.

LIFE

Scenic Fairfield

Upon graduation, we all face that reluctant departure of the beautiful Fairfield Campus. In order to help us all remember the places that meant so much to us during our college years, this page was designed. This page, however, cannot do justice to all of our experiences here at Fairfield. This page consists of the classrooms where we were challenged, the new Egan Chapel where we were able to pray, the residence halls where we learned what it meant to have a "neighbor" and the 212 acres which house the Jesuit Tradition. — Thomas Beirne

ORIENTATION 1990

Orientation 1990 lifted off on September 4th, as the Fairfield junior class tradition of welcoming the incoming freshman continued. Co-chairs Brian McSherry and Dipa Mehta led the event as nearly 700 freshman and their parents arrived on campus. The new drive-to-your-dorm entry was extremely successful. The traffic problem that was encountered in 1989 was at last solved. And with a theme like "Up, Up and Away . . . The Sky's the Limit", surely nothing will ever hold the class of 1994 down!

The Orientation activities began on Sunday and ran through Tuesday. The Parent's Reception and infamous President's Welcome started off the programs. Now, everyone remember the odds say that you will marry that guy or girl that was sitting to the right or left of you during that lecture! The REAL fun began with the Orientation Olympics. These games included an obstacle course, tug-of-war, pie-in-the-face question contest, and, of course, the ever-impossible grease pole. The familiarization process came to a climax when the class of 1994 met the entire univerity community at the Activities Fair and Welcome Back Picnic. College has just begun for you freshman, BUT be warned it is the fastest four years of your life!

Seniors Can Party 191 Nights A Year

"Beer, Beer . . . Are we drinking beer?"

Every year the senior class embarks on a journey to a rented hall with what is known as "OPEN BAR." This year was no exception. The theme of the night was "191 days left until graduation." The spirits were high unless the realization of where one will be come May settled into people's minds. But most enjoyed the evening, living strictly for the moment. Since there was only one bar, people seemed to have a difficult time getting their drinks quickly; but not to fear, because after about an hour no one really noticed how long they were waiting.

Dancing became a challenge as the beer level on the dance floor increased proportionately with the number of drunk seniors found dancing. It succeeded in tripping several unsuspecting passersby, but injured few. However, one cannot give such an optimistic outlook when it came to the fates of the clothing worn by the victim. Many women left with high-slitted skirts and beer-stained heels. The men didn't fare much better with missing buttons and lost ties. Despite the clothing casualties, the seniors seemed to be drawn together by an invisible force called COLLEGE. The guests were relieved, even if only for the night, of the burdens born of hard work, long interviews, and anticipation of the not so distant future. That one night brought the seniors closer together and they realized that the class of 1991 would always remain an inseparable part of them.

Fairfield Loves To Dance

Following Fairfield tradition, the Harvest Dance once again began the cycle of semi-formals held here on campus. This FUSA sponsored event was held in Alumni Hall. The music for this event was provided by a Video DJ, who rocked the house down with dances like the chicken and the Electric Slide. The changing of the seasons brings with it a winter dance called Sadie-Hawkins. This event is a little different from Harvest. Sadies is the dance where the women have to extend the invitations to the men! Most students didn't seem to have a problem swallowing their pride to ask who they wanted. All and all it was a successful evening.

Dancing at Fairfield, is the students favorite pastime. Many have heard the saying, "REAL MEN don't eat quiche and they don't dance either!" Well, this definitely does not apply at Fairfield University, because here just about everyone loves to dance. Whether the dance be slow, fast, in a group, or only with that special someone, these people really know how to have fun! The school has a total of five dances (not including the ones that take place over senior week, of course). The other three dances are the Snowball, Luck-of-the-Roomate, and Dogwoods. These take place second semester, leaving Dogwoods for last, as the most popular and quickest to sell out. On the other hand, Screw-Your-Roomate has been known to be the most suprizing, due to the fact that your roomate decides who your date will be. Overall, Fairfield can be considered the school that invented "Shook me all night Long", because just about every student can shake it that long and then some.

(AHEM)..." GREETINGS MEMBERS OF THE FRESHMAN CLASS"...
" I'M YOUR MODERATOR FOR UPCOMING THOUGHT PROVOKING DISCUSSIONS... I'M GLAD TO SEE SO MANY BRIGHT ENTHUSIASTIC FACES..."
UH.... WELCOME TO THE FIRST (AND HOPEFULLY LAST) ANNUAL FRESHMAN WORKSHOP!

THE FRESHMAN EXPERIENCE

Up until the class of '94, the "freshman experience" consisted of three days of tedious speeches, forgettable orientation tours, and somewhat decent food at Seiler's. After that, freshman were pretty much left on their own to adjust to college life. This year, freshman were placed in all-freshman floors or in Dolan Hall, the all-freshman dorm that used to be called Julie (Can dorms have sex changes at a Catholic school?) At the same time, Fairfield decided to extend the Orientation program beyond the first day of classes. Did this Combination work? Only time will tell . . .

The Freshman Experience 1991 was a program which developed over the first semester, covering a wide range of topics: social and personal, religious and educational. The idea was to expose the newcomers to all sorts of college life, especially what they didn't read about in the Fairfield Prospectus. Of course, some were calling this brainwashing: keeping the youth away from the BAD influences of the upperclassmen, while teaching them the proper way to conduct themselves at Fairfield. And in retrospect, it may be that keeping them from the GOOD influences of upperclassmen led them to discover many improper ways to conduct themselves. In other words, the group with the highest SAT's, got the lowest ever GPA's and got everyone rethinking the freshman program PDQ!

To sum up the program, I will tell you what two freshman said about our group. First, one guy told me, "Most of these topics are lame," but he came almost every week. Another girl only made it twice, but after one meeting I heard her say to a friend, "Y'Know, I never thought of it that way before." In other words, the program had some merit, but it needed work. Next year, our director Gwen Vendley will have more money, resources, and time to work with, and if anyone can improve this group, Gwen can. Beyond that, many facilitators will return for next year, and all facilitators can learn from our past mistakes. The Freshman Experience has survived its first year, and so has the class of '94. As a Freshman Facilitator for the class of '94, I think both have the potential to become vital aspects of Fairfield University. — Jennifer Blewitt

THE LAST LAUGH

We at the Manor Yearbook decided to take a serious look at a not so serious phenomenon that has been occurring for the past four years here at Fairfield University — Morning Mayhem. It is certainly quite true, (as depicted in the Mirror article entitled "Just When You Thought it Was Safe??") that the two cohosts of Morning Mayhem, Dogger and Smitty, have been responsible for a lot havoc and hijinx on the airwaves of WVOF (not to mention the loss of alot of hair by several high ranking administration officials at Fairfield!!). One does not have to look very far to get a response from people who have encountered these two merry pranksters. Everything from — "I wish they would stop making fun of my toupee" (Fr. Kelly) to "Why are you in my room at 7 AM. and what's my underwear doing on your head??" — has been said about the antics of Morning Mayhem. The Manor Yearbook decided to get down to the nitty-gritty and find out what makes Morning Mayhem tick . . .

Q: How would you guys best describe Morning Mayhem?

A: Lewd, Nude, and lots of jello pudding!!

Q: Is it true that you two were the ones responsible for letting the lab animals loose in the library during finals a few years ago?

A: Well frankly, No, but we have to admit that the thought had crossed our minds — along with the idea of having people run naked (or covered with Seiler's "Seafood Surprise") through the cafeteria during one of those "special" dining nights!!

Q: How could you best sum up four years at Fairfield?

A: Being "Pirates" and not letting classes and school-work interfere with our education at Fairfield University.

Q: So what does the future really have in store for you two?

A: Well, we really don't know at this point, but we could give you the TOP TEN EMPLOYMENT OPPORTUNITIES FOR MORNING MAYHEM!

1. Pimps
2. Poster Children for Planned Parenthood
3. Condom Testing
4. Belly Dancing/Jello Wrestling
5. The Vice Presidency??
6. Fairfield University Admissions Office (janitorial staff)
7. Med-Lab Experiment Specimens
8. Tackling Dummy for N.Y. Giants
9. Hired Assassins
10. Ringling Bros. Clowns

Q: Is there anything you guys would like to say to all of the students of Fairfield U. now that you're finally graduating?

A: Yeah, as a matter of fact there are a few things we'd like to say. First of all, we'd like to thank all of our listeners who've been through it all with us — the good, the bad, and the ugly! Second, we'd like to congratulate the CLASS OF 1991 — way to go gang!! It has definitely been a great four years — and believe it or not the best is yet to come!! Keep on partying guys! Third, we know that we've really wreaked havoc in the WVOF studios and driven plenty of people crazy — but just remember it could be a lot worse . . . We could have been on the five or six year plan!!! (Wouldn't that be a treat??) Finally, we'd just like to say that you should never take things too seriously in life — laughter is a great thing it can get you through anything (it sure helped us!). Maybe a few years down the road when we all meet again we'll still be laughing? Ha-Ha-Ha!!

Spring Break 1991!

Spring Break at Fairfield, like other colleges, is an annual tradition. Many students spend the year or more saving up every penny so that they may travel to exotic places like Cancun, Mexico, Bermuda & The Bahamas, and in-country places like Florida and California. Some unfortunate souls remain at school or at home, but are still thankful for the week break.

Spring Break trips weren't all without problems. Many people were forced to take later flights or leave at 4:00 a.m. The Persian Gulf Conflict didn't ease the traveling problems either. Many that had planned on flying out of the country were forced to redirect their routes. One particularly terrible (but I think absolutely hilarious) incident happened to my housemates. They had planned for months to go to Bermuda, so they got up at 3:30 am to catch their flight, flew down to the island and guess what — they couldn't land due to high winds so they flew all the way back to New York. Not to worry though, they finally arrived a day late but like most others they had an awesome time. Then everyone returned to Fairfield tan and well-rested (except me who spent the vacation doing yearbook, but I love yearbook) — Katie Belcher

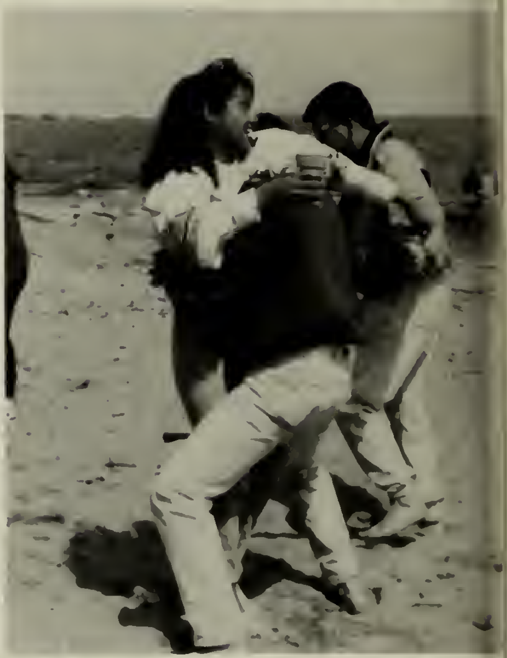
10,000 MANIACS IN CONCERT!!

Fairfield University's Harvest Dance is usually preceded by a band. In the past, Fairfield has seen names like Eddie Money, INXS, The Indigo Girls, Melissa Etheridge, and Jay Leno. This year FUSA presented the popular music of 10,000 Maniacs. There was no opening band, so to the audience's glee the group immediately took the stage.

The concert consisted of virtually all new music from the band. At one point during the show, the lead singer gave the microphone to an eager fan (a Fairfield Student) who proceeded to sing the entire song, amazing the audience, as well as the band with his knowledge of the lyrics. Many people thought they would be disappointed with the band selection, but no one seemed unhappy that evening!

WHAT A BLAST!

400 Nights



IT'S JUNIOR TIME!

Every Year, like the seniors, Fairfield juniors set aside one day to simply enjoy being one year closer to graduation. The event is called 400 nights and the place is the Fairfield beach, this year it was at the Girl's Duplex. The festivities began at around noon on a Friday and continued with open bar and free keg beer until people either simply couldn't drink anymore or the alcohol supply was diminished. Another Fairfield tradition is that the townhouse seniors have a big TH Jam back on-campus so when the juniors return they can be excellent entertainment, and this year was no exception.

400 nights is an experience that everyone should take part in. Although I was merely a photographer's assistant when I went down to see what was going on it's definitely fun to watch. And take this warning, if you attend next year only as a spectator .. Watch out for usually quiet friends they will attack you when under the influence!

I very much wanted to put captions under these photos, but since I don't know everyone I decided to put more pictures rather than words!!!

91 Nights til' Graduation!

Like 191 Nights, 91 Nights is a celebration for seniors only. It gives the senior class an opportunity to spend one night with their classmates whom they've been in classes with four years. It is also a chance to party with your friends at a place with an open bar and hor d'oeuvres aplenty. Not to mention the fact that no one has to drive home except those poor bus drivers. Although ticket sales for 91 nights was not as successful as 191, the night was still a fun one ($50 or not!).
I must admit that I did not personally attend, but the stories were incredible! It was held at the Continental Manor in Norwalk and the DJ was a hit! People danced until one in the morning and the class unity could be felt in the spirit of the evening. Remember everyone . . . If there is anything the class of 1991 knows how to do it's PARTY!!!!

What a Night! Whether it be dancing up a storm, getting reacquainted with old friends, or passing out on some very comfortable table somewhere, the class of 1991 really knows how to live it up. (Even if it means only 91 nights until we all have to truly act like adults or at least try!)

How could anyone stay home on the 9lst night until graduation? Hey didn't any of you Catch that Wave freshman year? Well, these happy people are riding it at full crest.

WHAT A WEEKEND: DOGWOOD WKD 1991

DOGWOOD DANCE

Did I hear you right? Did you ask what Dogwood weekend is? Dogwood weekend is only the biggest weekend of the school year at Fairfield. This year it began with a bang. The Dogwood dance started it off on Friday with a video DJ and a new outdoor setting. This year the dance was celebrated under a tent and many more students were able to attend. The dance did still sell out though. But the weather was perfect all weekend. It was a bit cloudy and cold for the Clam Jam on Sunday, but there was no rain in sight. The weather for May Day was beautiful, which made the fair a huge success. Every year the school has a May Day fair but usually it is held inside. Each club has a booth that sells something or has a game to be played. This year Grand Design offered it's talent so that the fair could have a light musical air as well.

Jeanne DiMuzio did an excellent job organizing the events and everything seemed to go smoothly. It was definitely a weekend to remember and it sent the seniors off to their new lives with a climatic end. Good Luck to all. May every Fairfield Grad be a success!

The night was perfect for dancers, partiers, and lovers. Everyone seemed to have a fantastic time. The bathrooms (or Porto-Lets) left something to be desired; but at least they gave us handiwipes right?!

FRIENDS FOREVER!

CLAM JAM 1991

The Clam Jam was a day of drinking for all! The beach was filled with people and bands played to add to the festivities! The Fairfield Police were kind enough not to break up the jam, so the day was able to attain the ultimate party status!

ON CAMPUS BANDS ROCK FAIRFIELD TO A NEW BEAT!

On campus bands are as common as apple pie, but Fairfield has been lucky enough to have some of the most talented. Bands like Grand Design, In Transition, and Through the Mood have given the university some musical life. They have played in places such as the Stag-Her, Master's and even Captain's Cove and their loyal Fairfield fans have followed. There music has given spirit to many-a-night and brought the students together to enjoy the parties of a century. Although I can't possibly recognize every band there was this year these five were among the most widely heard. Good Luck guys, may music always be in your life!

Have you ever dreamed of being a famous singer? or maybe a famous actor/actress? Well, I have and I was given the opportunity to live out these dreams in what Fairfield calls Airbands. Airbands is a Lip Sync. contest available for those brave few who are willing to get up on stage and make fools of themselves, the funnier the better. This year only three groups had enough guts and charisma to take the stage in the Oak Room. One group showed its sensational stage presence in their rendition of Madonna's Vogue, the Little Mermaid's Kiss the Girl, and The Lion Sleeps Tonight. Another group showed its ability in songs from the Jackson Five and Grease. The final band Eight is Enough was not only my band but it was the winning group. Under my adequate leadership we came up with some very successful acts: A Medley from the Little Mermaid, the Bartman, and a medley of T.V. tunes. Airbands is alot of work and each group deserves a large amount of respect for taking the time to put on a show for the siblings. But take it from someone who has experienced pseudo-showbiz for two years, it's probably the most fun and most memorable thing I have ever done at Fairfield and it was well worth the work.

THE FAIRFIELD UNIVERSITY MANOR PRESENTS: SPECIAL EVENTS

Every year Fairfield University invites some special performers or speakers to come to campus and share their special talents with the community. This year many fantastic people came to campus; among them were Yolanda King, Tommy John, James Mapes, and several hilarious comics in a Comedy Cabaret.

James Mapes thrilled spectators with his ability to hypnotize innocent onlookers. Yolanda King opened people's eyes to the dreams of her famous father Martin Luther King Jr. And Tommy John explained to the audience the difficulties involved in professional sports, using his personal experiences with the N.Y. Yankees for backing.

Humor was seen in every common occurrence when comedians were invited to the Stag-Her to bring up even the lowest of spirits. All and all it was a very successful year in the special events area. Thanks to all involved!

Above Yolanda King, James Mapes, and a comedian thrill audiences with their unbelievable talent. Remember everyone look out for the "NUEGENBAUR!"

FAIRFIELD REALIZES THE IMPORTANCE OF FAMILY SUPPORT

PARENTS WEEKEND

When we were in high school, we often felt that our parents and siblings were crowding us. However, in college having our family around didn't seem so bad. Heck! Most of us, well all of us, were proud of our families. I know that I wanted to show off my little sisters when they came up for Sibling Weekend and Parent's Weekend wasn't just a free meal, but a time to thank our parents for sending us to a school that we love. Fairfield not only helped us to grow up, but it helped us to appreciate the important things in life as well.

Mom and Dad, Sisters and Brothers we do appreciate you and always have deep down, but we had to grow up a little before we could really express it. I think that when I say, "We couldn't have done it without the love and support of a family, "I speak for everyone at Fairfield. We do realize that you have made sacrifices for our happiness and for that and everything else we thank you. THANKS!

SIBLING WEEKEND

Late Night at the Rec Plex was the high point of sibling weekend. All the siblings enjoyed playing games like backgammon, Twister, and basketball until 3:00 am; after all it was past most of their bedtimes.

A MAJOR THAT IS A LIFE-SAVING CAREER

If you look up in the dictionary the definition of a nurse, it would probably read something like this, "a person who is skilled or trained in caring for the sick esp. under the supervision of a physician." But a nurse is more than what an apathetic definition may describe; a nurse is a person that dedicates their life to helping others. A nurse is someone that gets up everyday and goes to work in a place that may not be as glamorous as Wall Street or Hollywood, where bedpans, medical reports, and emergencies are familiar territory.

Being a nurse isn't glamorous. Well, maybe it could be if you were the private nurse of Kevin Costner! But in most cases nursing is a dirty job that can be very emotional. Tragedy and death are found in most hospitals and nurses have to deal with worrying families, as well as, aching patients everyday. But these people that call themselves nurses can do it, because they are able to give a part of themselves to their job. They give their heart and soul to their work for the sole reward of helping others, not just sick people but their family and friends as well. They comfort, calm, and care. When a Newborn lets out its first cry or a gunshot victim pulls through, the nurses are filled with a sense of accomplishment that we all should admire. Nurses are dedicated individuals that give the selfless gift of love to people they don't even know!

I admire and respect them all. I wish the Fairfield Nursing majors the best of luck and thank you for caring for us all!

CAFETERIA POWER!

Since the University opened a new cafeteria this year in Dolan Campus, the Manor felt that it would only be fair if we acknowledged this event. We all know how much we love and appreciate Seiler's, so here's to them. Plus, it doesn't hurt that pictures of people, caught off-guard while eating are always good for a laugh. So smile your on Candid Camera!

United States troops leave for the Middle East.

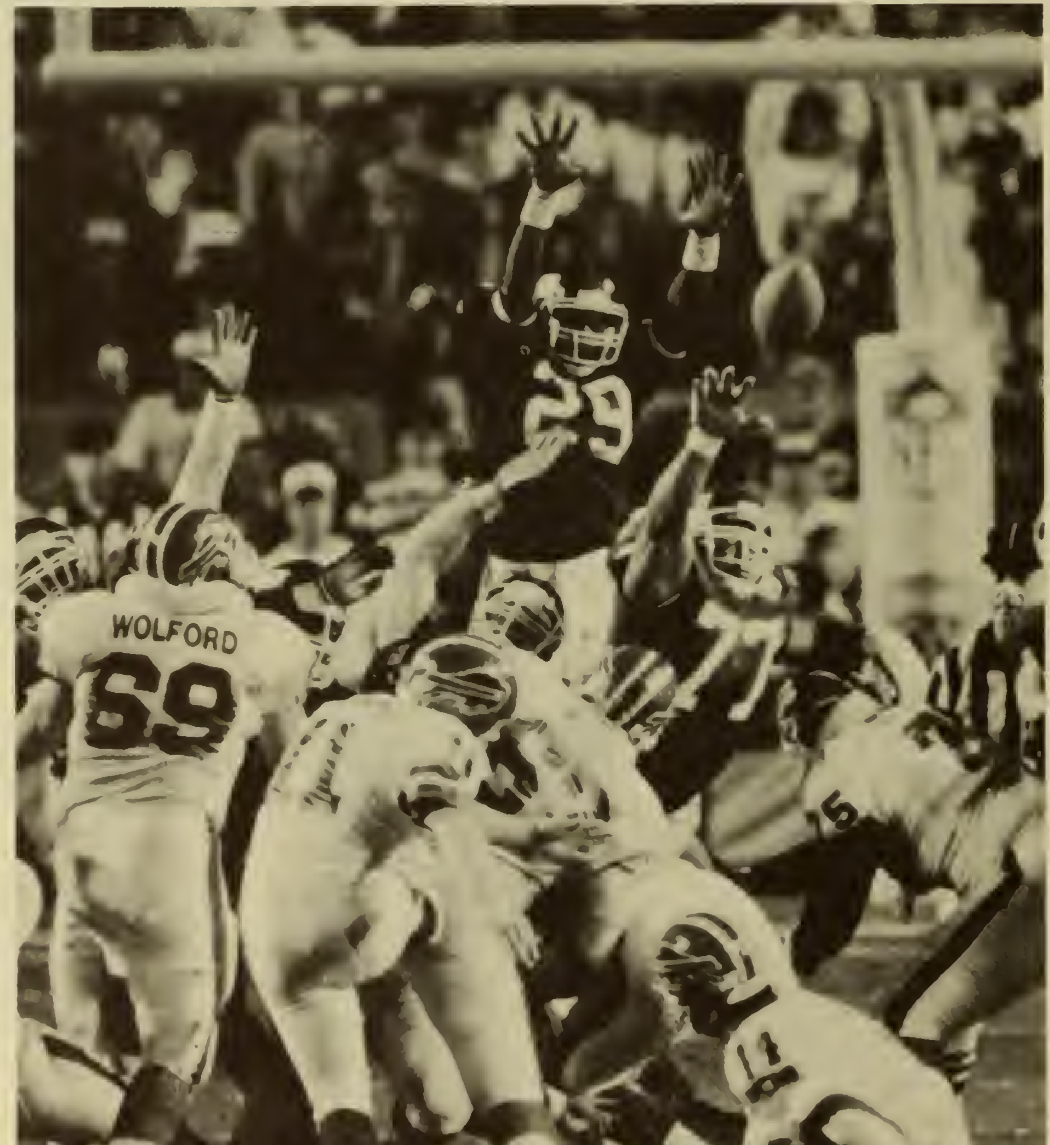
World leaders welcomed a united Germany into the international community on October 3 (1990), but concerns about the balance of power tempered some European enthusiasm.

"A new era is beginning for Germany, for Europe and indeed, we hope, for the world," Secretary of State James A. Baker III declared in New York.

Celebrating the fruits of their summit diplomacy, President Bush and Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev shook hands and signed a sheaf of agreements, including a conditional trade accord. During the June (1990) summit, the leaders also embraced a preliminary deal to cut long-range nuclear arms.

The Cincinnati Reds, given no chance to beat the Oakland Athletics, needed only four quick games to win the World Series in one of the biggest upsets in baseball history.

The Reds completed their improbably sweep on October 20 (1990) in spite of losing two star players, Eric Davis and Billy Hatcher, to injuries. Cincinnati relied on Jose Rijo and rallied for two runs in the eighth inning to win 2-1, and that was it.



Buffalo Bills kicker Scott Norwood, center, misses the field goal on the last play of the game, clinching the victory for the New York Giants in Super Bowl XXV in Tampa. The Giants won 20-19 in a game that kept fans in the seats and glued to the TV screen until the final second.

A fireworks display of anti-aircraft fire following an air attack in Baghdad by allied aircraft enforcing the U.N. resolutions early in the morning of January 17, 1991. Bombing continues in an effort to cripple the Iraqi air force and disable weapons facilities.

American crewmen in the Saudi Desert on January 21, 1991, prepare an M1A1 for the expected ground assault against Iraq. The new high-tech tank is outfitted with a special plow to be used for clearing minefields left for advancing allied ground forces.

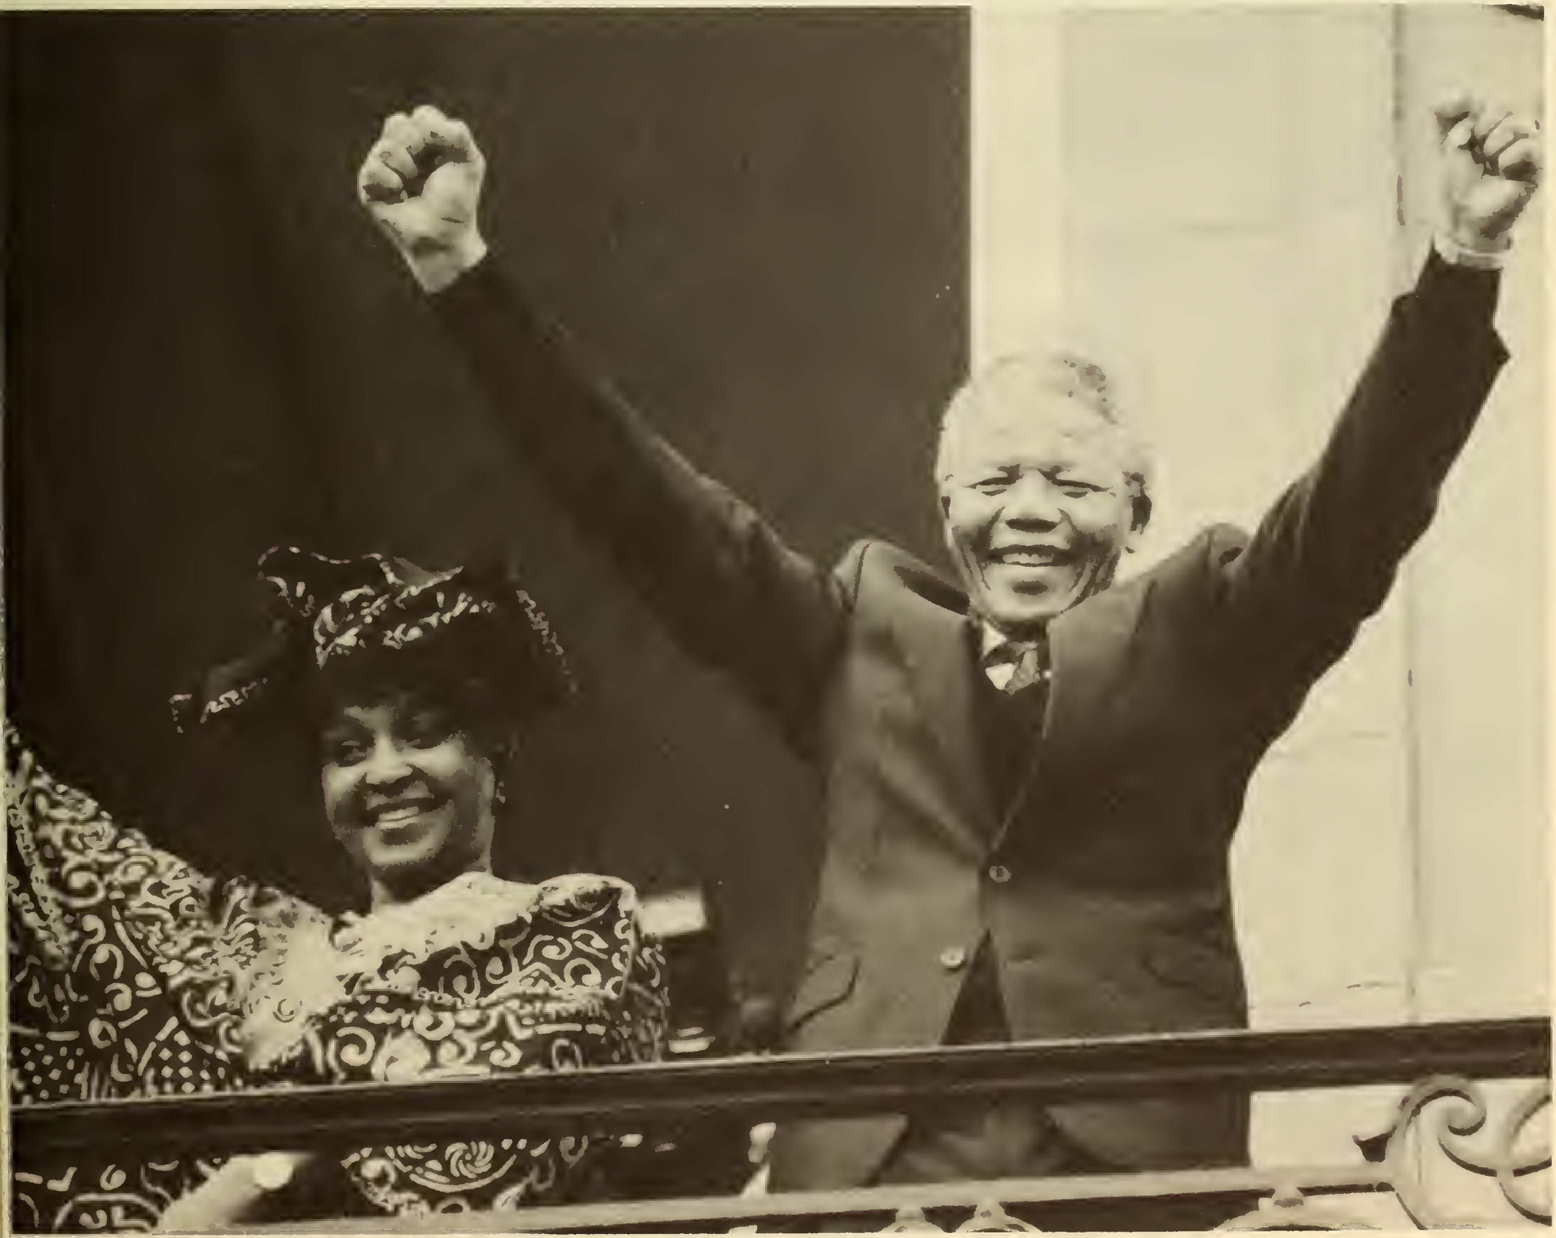
MANOR HEADLINERS!

Violeta Barrios de Chamorro, publisher of Nicaragua's opposition newspaper, led a 14-part coalition to victory over Sandinista rule despite political inexperience. "The Nicaraguan people have shown that they want to live in democracy, in peace and in freedom," Mrs. Chamorro told more than 1,000 cheering supporters at her election headquarters on February 26, 1990. The general election was monitored by more than 3,000 international observers, including the United Nations, the Organization of American States and a delegation led by former U.S. President Jimmy Carter. They all pronounced the voting fair and the count clean.

It was rude and crude. But this time fans were spared seeing where she's tattooed. Still, many people said that Roseanne Barr was a disgrace for her shrill rendition of the national anthem at a National League Baseball doubleheader and a crude on-field gesture afterward.

A legion of clipboard-toting counters sought out shelters, subways and steam grates on March (1990) in the broadest attempt ever to find out the extent of homelessness since it became a national disgrace in the 1980's. The U.S. Census Bureau is spending 2.7 million dollars to tally homeless Americans, but critics fear an undercount will allow the government to justify cuts in services. The homeless — now estimated to number 250,000 to 3 million — were asked their name, age, sex, race, and marital status. The numbers are unfortunately expected to rise in the future especially with the failing economy.

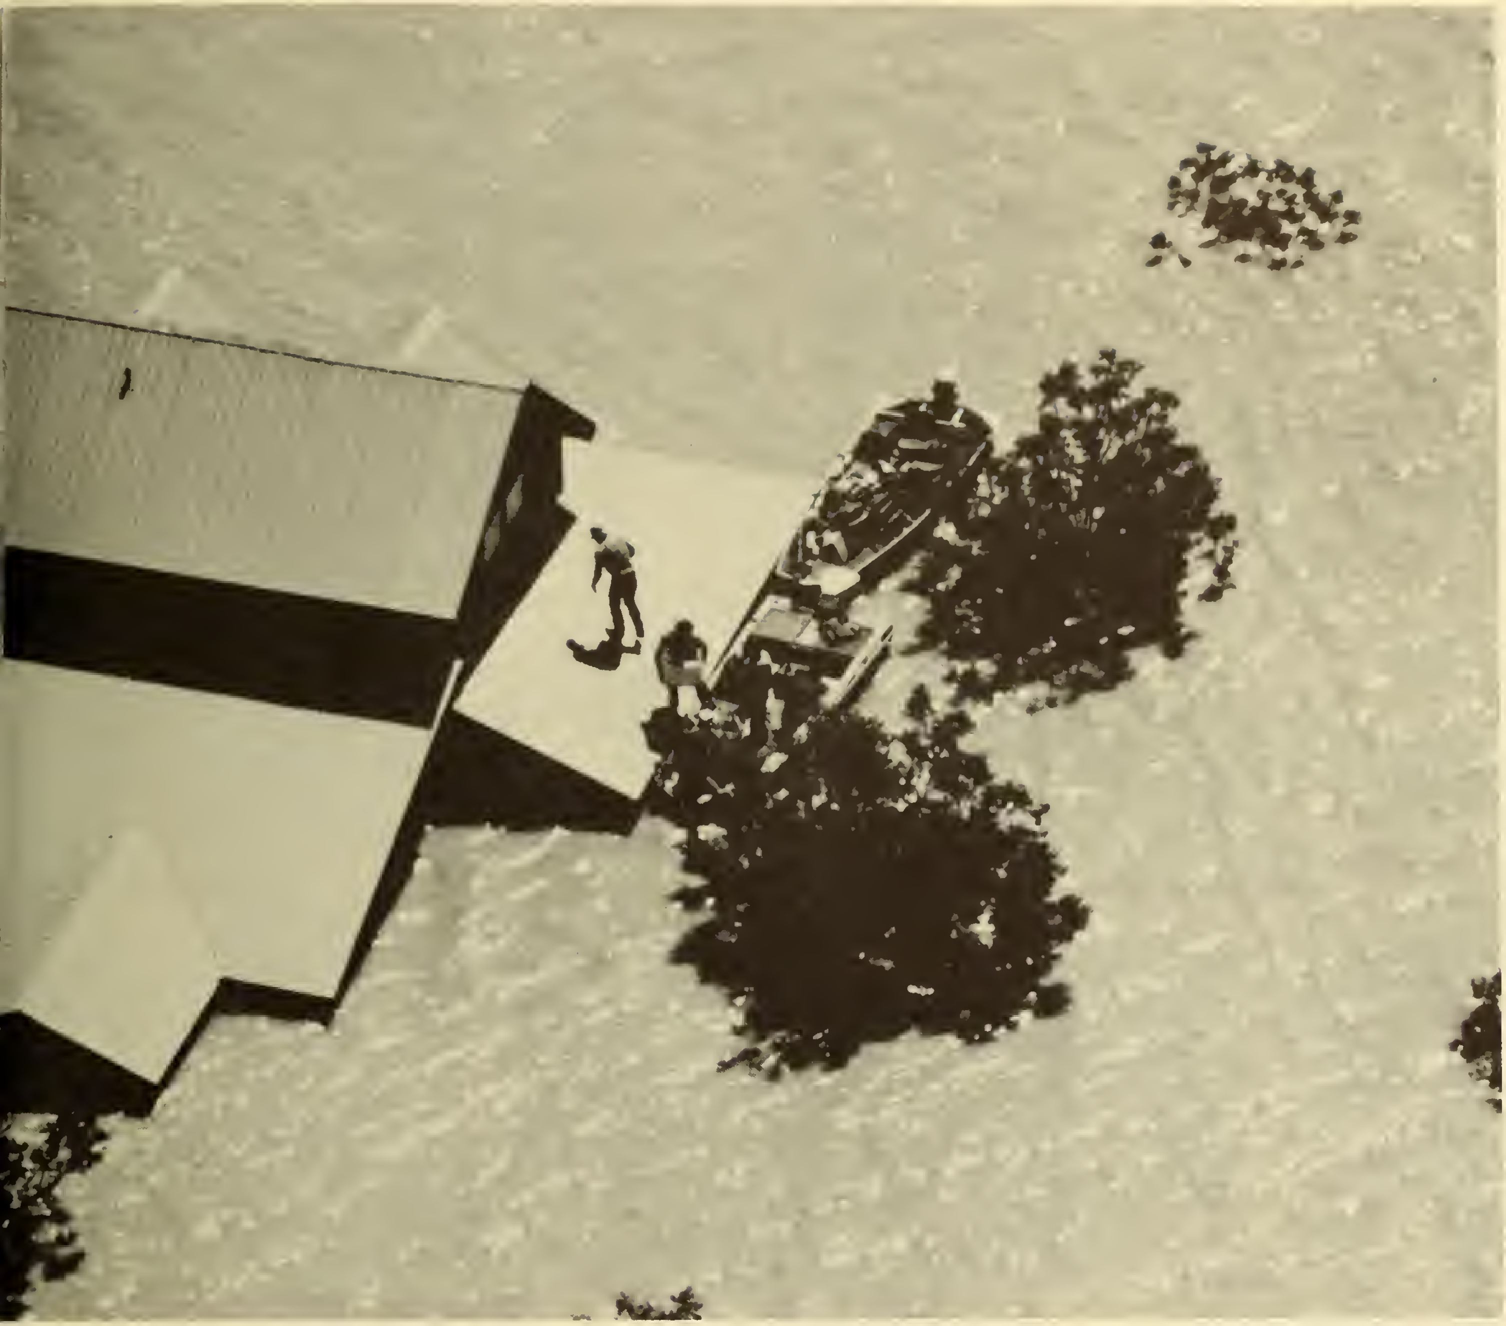
Nelson Mandela, one of the world's most celebrated political prisoners, was freed by the South African government in February after 27 years in prison. He was serving a life sentence for allegedly plotting sabotage to overthrow the white government. After his release, he went on a six-week tour of three continents. Mandela urged foreign governments to maintain sanctions against South Africa and raised support for his equality hopes.

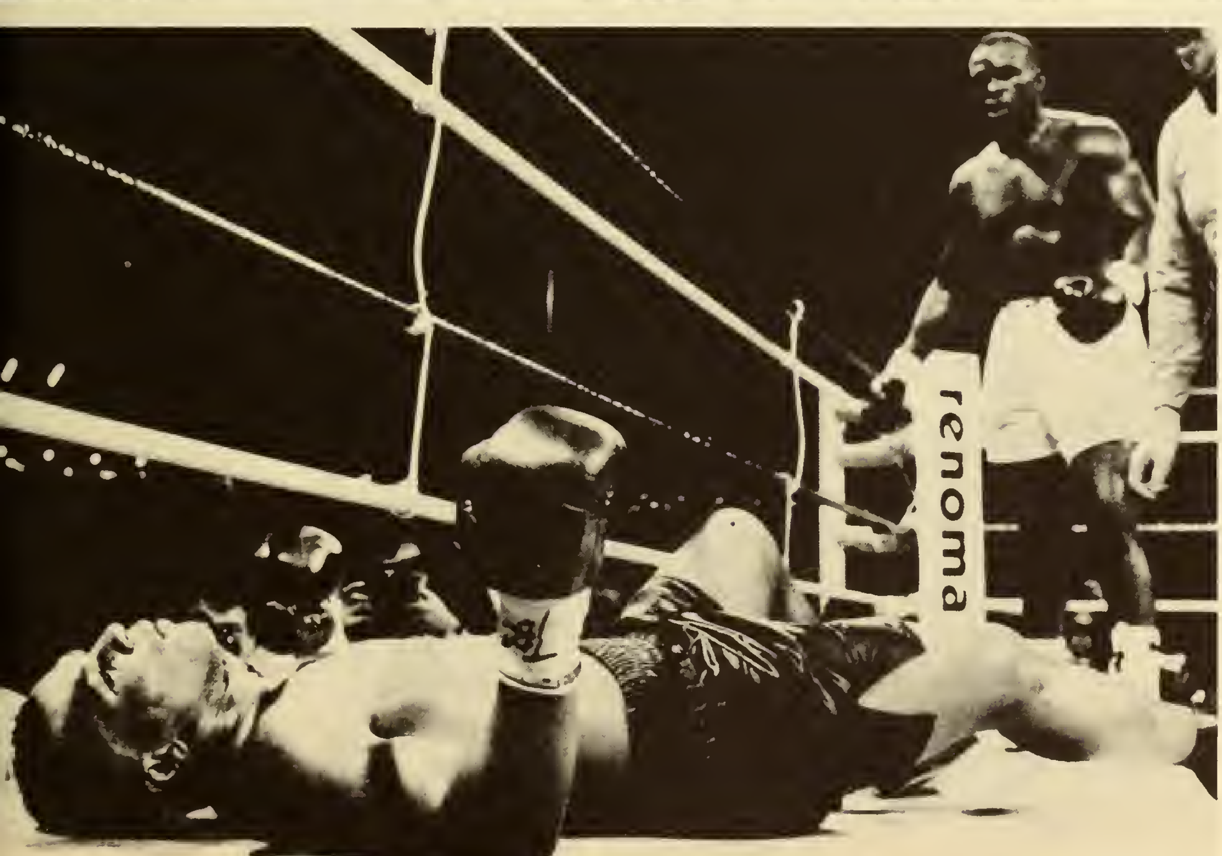


HOMEFRONT TROUBLE

The Southern U.S. spent much of the spring wringing itself out after weeks of flooding turned entire towns into muddy lakes where buildings poked up like knotty tree stumps, and the toll of shattered lives was tremendous.

The U.S. Senate rejected a constitutional amendment against flag burning on June 26 (1990) with the critics arguing that it was already dead and being debated largely as ammunition for use against them at election time.





James "Buster" Douglas wore a world heavyweight championship belt after his stunning knockout of Mike Tyson in Tokyo earlier this year. He was knocked out in the 10th round by a five-punch combination. The title was in limbo for three days because of bickering but the ruling stood in the end. Tyson was quoted as saying, "Just call it a victory for the small man!"

The U.S. Army's heaviest ground firepower reached Saudi soil for deployment behind Arab forces manning the front line in the standoff with Iraq.

Dozens of MI-IP tanks and M2 Bradley armored infantry fighting vehicles, rolled off two huge transport ships at a port in northeastern Saudi Arabia and made their way north into the desert.

David H. Souter, a mild mannered, well-read and previously little-known judge from New Hampshire, became history's 105th Supreme Court Justice in October (1990) after pledging to "do equal right to the poor and to the rich."

Romanians voted May 20 (1990) in their first free elections in 53 years. Interim President Ion Iliescu won in a landslide victory, but the two opposition candidates alleged numerous instances of election fraud.

German fans chanted and sang and screamed their pleasure on July 8 (1990) when West Germany dethroned Argentina and won the World Cup. "Deutschland ist Weltmeister (Germany is world champion)," was the prevalent scream among fans packed into Rome's Olympic Stadium as a match that had grown ugly with fouls in the second half finally ended.

OPERATION PARTICIPATION

Activities Fairs take place at the beginning of every semester. New students and upperclassmen can meet officers from campus student organizations to ask questions or join the club on the spot! This gives even the normally shy people an opportunity to get involved at Fairfield and it also is a good way to insure that you will get some sort of mail! Take this advice Get Involved. You'll never regret the friendships you'll make.

Action-Packed Fun

Win or lose, intramural games are always a good time. Sometimes people get caught up in the game and fights arise but are tamed when they realize that it is all in good fun. In some sports injuries were to be had: jammed fingers, broken noses, black eyes, and even broken bones; but no matter what these teams returned every week to experience the thrill of victory or the agony of defeat. Although many intramurals such as volleyball, basketball, and softball are not represented here, they did take place and I hear the basketball victors were once again The "Blue Penguins". Athletic or not, there is a division for you and believe me everyone enjoys intramural involvement.

CIRCLE K IN ACTION: BLOODMOBILE & PEDIATRICS

Do you want to know the meaning of dedication Well, one meaning is Circle K. Circle K is th largest service club at Fairfield and sponsor many important events. This year they were le by Kathleen Stram and awards were to be ha as the club revved up for action. Not only di Kathleen win best president in the district, bu the club itself was honored at the leadership banquet for being the club that has contributed the most to Fairfield over the year. They also volunteered at the Kiwanis Pediatric Trauma Institute and the Bloodmobile both semesters was Circle K sponsored. And I can tell you, getting a lot of needle-phobic people to give blood to those who need it is not an easy job. Congratulations Circle K, keep up the good work.

CLUB ACTION!

Throughout the year each club that is COSO sponsored must do a certain number of fundraisers and activities. The best clubs are the most active ones. Activities range from Bake Sales to tournaments and car washes. This year a May Day Fair was held in which every club had to have a booth representation. Some booths sold hot dogs, soda, snowcones, or even ice cream; while others offered the opportunity to throw a pie in someone else's face or catch your own fish. No matter what the activity the day was a success and the tradition will be continued on next year. There are all different kinds of clubs to interest the multitude of different tastes on this campus. There are service clubs, athletic clubs, and academic clubs. And yes they all look good on a resume, but that shouldn't be your reason for joining. These clubs provide a great opportunity to meet a variety of people on campus from a variety of different classes. Yearbook may not have been the smartest club choice that I could have made but it introduced me to a different form of Fairfield pride.

Employing the combined talents of the Chamber Singers, Sine Nomine, and the Men's Ensemble, and with the direction of the most capable Carole Ann Coyne-Maxwell the group is successful in reminding preoccupied students that even during the pressure of final exams, there is a reason to celebrate. Their song signals the joy of Christmas and reminds us of spring's arrival. In addition, they performed at many University masses and functions, sharing their gift in celebration. This year they brought their gift to Pennsylvania and the wonderful world of Walt Disney in Florida. Viva la musica and Viva the Fairfield University Glee Club

MANNERISMS:

What a Staff! I've worked on yearbook for 4 years but this staff was by far one of the best. It was a very small staff but we successfully put out a pretty good book which seemed virtually impossible. I will admit that I could not have done this without the support of one very special person, Lisa Licamele. She kept me sane and took my orders without complaint. Thanks Lis I'll miss you! And, Val good luck next year, I have faith that you'll be a success. Thanks everyone that put up with me when I was a stressball over this book, it took me a while but I finally came through. The amount of work involved in yearbook is enormous, but I'm sure that my staff will agree that the class of 1991 was well worth it!

CATCH THE WAVE . . .

The Stags labored to a disappointing 8-20 finish while winning just four of fifteen MAAC contests. The basketball team was plagued with inexperience throughout the 1990-91 slate. Fairfield started one of its youngest lineups in history, counting on two and sometimes three freshmen, two sophomores and a senior.

It looked as if the Stags were going to put together one of its best seasons in the last five years, winning four of its first five games. But, as fate would have it, the team's youth and inability to score began to show. Fairfield went on a five game losing streak before tallying back-to-back victories over Loyola (MD) and Manhattan to move to 6-6 on the year.

The next month proved disastrous for the Stags as they dropped a school record 11 games in a row before beating Manhattan and Loyola (MD) to stand at 8-18. It only got worse as the Stags ran into a buzzsaw in Siena, who handed Fairfield its worst beating of the year, 97-63. The MAAC Tournament was over quickly for the Stags as they lost to Canisius in the opening round to finish the season.

Some bright spots were seen during the season, as freshmen Johnnie Jones and Scott Sytulek played solidly and were selected to the MAAC's All-Rookie Team, sophomores Kevin George (13.3 ppg) and Drew Henderson (11.1 rpg) led the Stags in scoring and rebounding, respectively. Henderson finished as the 16th leading rebounder in the country.

With the graduation of just one starter, the return of nine veterans and the addition of two talented freshmen, the future looks bright for Stag basketball.

At the end of the season, sixth-year head coach Mitch Bounaguro resigns and is replaced by Paul Cormier.

THE FAIRFIELD CHAMPIONS

The Fairfield Lady Stags lived up to their pre-season billing as the best team in the MAAC conference, setting a conference record with a 15-1 league mark and a 25-6 overall slate. While they won several games by large margins, they proved in the MAAC Tournament that they were capable of making key shots in the final seconds to pull out close victories as well.

MAAC Tournament (and team) MVP Lisa Mikelic won the semifinal vs. Manhattan and the championship game vs. St. Peter's with last second buzzer beaters. Joining Mikelic on the All-Tournament team for Fairfield were senior Tricia Sacca and sophomore Kate Abromovitch.

Although the team lost a tough one- point decision to Providence in the NCAA First Round, seniors Mikelic, Sacca and Shanna Lewis leave Fairfield as winners. Next year, coach Dianne Nolan will look to Abromovitch, junior center Trish Elser, freshman Robin Massari and junior Sue Bly, all of whom showed well in the NCAA game. The Lady Stags two junior point guards, Lynne Friel and Mary-Lu Matott, missed the Providence game with injuries, but will be back next season.

1990-91 was a landmark season for the Lady Stags, and with such a solid nucleus returning next season, the future looks just as bright.

THIS FAIRFIELD TEAM GAVE PAR FOR A COURSE!

Mother Nature reeked havoc this spring as the golf team did manage to participate in three matches and the 1991 New England Championships. The Stags began the spring slate at the Yale Invitational, placing 11th in the 18-team field with a score of 341, then it was off to New York to play in a tri-match with Iona and Columbia. The Stags finished just three strokes behind Iona for the title.

Fairfield struggled the next time out, finishing in last behind Quinnipiac and Southern Connecticut State. Rounding out the spring, Fairfield travelled to Willimantic, CT, to participate in the New England Championships. The Stags finished 10th in the 12-team field with a two-day total of 642, led by Brian Daly's 158. The highlight of the N.E. Championships was a hole-in-one shot by Paul Kenney.

NETS ARE NOTHING FOR US!

WOMEN'S VOLLEYBALL

Inexperience and a killer schedule caused the Fairfield volleyball team to begin 1990 with a rocky start. In fact, the Lady Stags managed only four wins in the first 24 matches of the year, and seemed to be in over their heads in many of the losses. In late October, as the MAAC Tournament approached, the Lady Spikers came together and fashioned a seven match winning streak, winning 21 of 23 individual games during that stretch to reach the MAAC semifinal, where they lost a tough five-game match to eventual champion St. Peter's. Fairfield finished the 1990 campaign at 11-21 overall.

Fairfield was dominated by freshmen and juniors this season, as only one senior (Barb Raney) and two sophomores (Janine Mees and Stephanie Reilly) were on the roster. Juniors Angela Cirina and Renee O'Neill led the team through their winning streak, as both earned MAAC All-Tournament honors. Also performing well were juniors Lily Donadio and Gina Calvario, and this foursome should make for a potent senior nucleus in 1991. Reilly developed into a consistent player and the freshmen showed flashes of future stardom. Kim Crudo, Beth Tiemann and Monica Roosa will be looked to for offensive contributions, while Erin Patton showed fine defensive ability.

Overall, the Lady Stags were able to finish the season on a positive note, something to build upon for the coming years.

CROSS COUNTRY

The Stags and the Lady Stags cross country teams each had their dominant members this fall. The men's team was led by senior Dan Islieb, who finished first overall in the Quinnipiac Invitational in September and second in the Vassar Invitational. Also consistently placing well for the men were Kurt Sandine, Dave Brackett, Peter Hickey and Ara Maranian.

The women were led by Kathleen Dana, whose fine season included a victory in the Bard College Invitational. Also running well for the Lady Stags were Kristin Killian, Eileen O'Donnell, Megan Fleming, Dawn Mulligan and Christine Hathaway.

In the MAAC championships the Lady Stags finished 6th place while the Stags took 9th.

FIELD HOCKEY

Second-year head coach Anita D'Ascenzo had to deal with a roster full of youth and question marks this year as the Lady Stags headed into the 1990 schedule. With an upgraded schedule and lack of scoring, Fairfield labored to a 2-10 record.

D'Ascenzo's first concern was to find a goalie, as last year's goalkeeper transferred to another school. What the Lady Stags got was a solid, experienced player in 5-7 Pam Murphy (Copiague, NY). Murphy was no stranger to Fairfield's field hockey program, as she was a team member as a freshman. Murphy took a year off from field hockey to concentrate on her studies before returning as a junior. She was steady in goal as she played every minute of every game, made 104 saves, gave up 36 goals, for a 3.81 goals against average.

Offensively, the lady Stags were led by sophomore Rosemary Looney (Wayland, MA), who tallied for a team leading four goals, while senior co-captain Amy Dondero (Blyfield, MA) pushed across three goals. Stabilizing the defense were senior co-captain Kristan Dammen (Columbia, MD), and junior Ellen Barton (Merion, PA). Dammen also notched a goal as well. Speedy sophomore Mary Beth Combs (East Lyme, CT), figured in the offense as she scored a goal and assisted on four others.

Fairfield's two victories were against Southern Connecticut (1- 0), and Siena (4-2).

MEN'S SOCCER

After beginning the 1990 season with six consecutive shutout losses, the Stag soccer team kicked into high gear winning six of their last 12 regular season games (averaging just over two goals per game) and earning itself a berth in the Metro Atlantic Athletic Conference Tournament. It was Fairfield's first-ever appearance in the league championship since the inception of the MAAC 10 years ago.

Fairfield's sprint to the MAAC tournament included a five-game league win streak which started with the Stags scoring their first 10 goals of the season in a weekend series versus Niagara (6-0) and Canisius (4-0). Then, after a tough 1-0 overtime loss to Big East opponent Providence, the Stags remained red hot in the MAAC as they defeated Siena (3-2), St. Peter's (3-1) and Iona (3-1). This brought Fairfield's overall record to 5-7, but more importantly, the Stags were in third place with a league record of 5-1. The only MAAC loss was to eventual champion Loyola in the first league contest of the year.

With a final record of 6-13, it marked the third most wins in a season by a Stag soccer team since the program started competition in 1968. This year's team wasn't far from the school record for wins in a season, as the 1981 squad finished at 8-11 with the likes of Hall of Fame inductee Mark Longwell.

HOCKEY

The Fairfield University ice hockey team finished the season with a 12-11-2 record, its first winning season in over a decade. The Stags barely missed out on a berth into the ECAC North-South playoffs, but still had to view the season as a success.

The season began with the Stags on a roll, winning five of their first six games. The season began against traditional opening-day rival, St. John's. A 6-4 win over the Redmen was followed by a 5-4 conquest of Western New England. After a loss to Framingham State, the Stags showed the ECAC South division that they were for real, posting a 5-3 road victory over Connecticut College, the defending South champions. A 2-2 December slate sent Fairfield home for the holidays with a 5-3 record.

With three home dates to begin February, the Stags went 2-1. After losing to Trinity, Fairfield trailed Villanova, 5-3, with seven minutes remaining. Bob MacDonald and Peter Lewis capitalized on Villanova mistakes and tied the score at 5-5, with Lewis' goal coming on the power play. The Stags dominated the two minutes of overtime, outshooting the Wildcats, 4-0. The fourth shot came from Mike Toland, who lit the lamp for a Fairfield victory. The Stags then dominated Quinnipiac in a 5-3 victory, scoring four even-strength goals. A three-game road trip dropped the Stags to 11-10-2 with home games remaining vs. Amherst and Scranton. Tim MacDevitt was strong in goal in the Amherst game, stopping 28 shots, but the Stags didn't score at all and lost 2-0. Knowing that they needed a strong showing in their season finale to keep their playoff hopes alive, Fairfield received goals from 12 different players, including two each from Greg Battiston, Mike Toland and Rick Mason, in blasting Scranton, 15-3. With a 12-11-2 record, Fairfield's playoff hopes were snuffed out, as they missed capturing the sixth and final spot by two tenths of a percentage point.

MEN'S SWIMMING

The Stags never got on track this winter, swimming to a disappointing 2-12 record. Rookie head coach, Phil Palumbo, tried to figure out why, after going winless in the first four meets and losing by an average of 61.5 points per contest.

The Stags finally put it all together downing St. Francis College by a score of 131-102. Fairfield lost the next three meets, beat Montclair State 60-53, and finished out the season on a four-meet losing streak before heading in the MAAC Tournament and the Metropolitan Conference Championships. The Stags finished 5th in the MAAC and 10 in the Met.

Fairfield will have to rely on a young team next year, as five seniors will graduate.

WOMEN'S SWIMMING

First-year head coach, Phil Palumbo was faced with a roster that boasted just two seniors in Kate Heller and Joan Laux. Even though the Lady Stags finished at 3-7, coach Palumbo was encouraged as he saw daily improvement.

This improvement resulted in two broken records, while several others were in jeopardy. Sophomore Liz McLoughlin set a new 200 yard breast stroke record at 2:44.43, while the quartet of Cyndi Mogro, Heller, Laux and McLoughlin broke the 400 yard medley relay finishing in 4:27.34.

After starting out the season splitting meets with Fordham (85-145) and Central Connecticut State (145-80), Fairfield dropped five meets before breaking out of the slump with an impressive 142-77 win over Iona, a 179-117 loss to Southern Connecticut and ended the season on a good note with a 57-38 win over Trinity.

Rounding out the season were the MAAC Tournament (4th place) and the New England Championship (12th place).

With just two swimmers being lost to graduation, the future looks bright for Lady Stag swimming.

MEN'S TENNIS

The Stags tennis team struggled through the 1990 fall season as they finished at 1-5 overall and took 7th place in the Metro Atlantic Athletic Conference championships. Fairfield experienced some growing pains this fall as the roster boasted just two senior, two juniors, one sophomore and five freshmen. With proper seasoning, the future of Stag tennis looks bright.

Fairfield's lone victory came as the Stags defeated MAAC rival Iona 5-3. In that match, juniors Sean Hattrick and Pete Cataldo, and senior John Beauvais all recorded singles victories losing just six games between them. Hattrick and Cataldo, the most consistent winners throughout the year, then teamed up for a 6-1, 6-3 doubles win while Beauvais and Chris Hayes won a pro-set at 8-6.

With the spring season not too far away, the Stags are looking forward to getting back on the winning track come mid-March.

mber one singles match, but en proceeded to claim victory the remaining five singles and three doubles matches.

The entire team played well throughout the season, as each player had matches where they were impressive. Even though first-year head coach Eileen Quirk ('85) will miss the leadership of her four graduating seniors, she has eight returning players who played top caliber competition this year and progressed very well.

Add to these a few talented freshmen and the Lady Stags should be a team to be reckoned with during the 1991 slate.

WOMEN'S SOFTBALL

The Lady Stags won their first MAAC Championship in school history in 1991. Although they entered the tournament with a 12-18 record, they won all four games when it counted.

Late in the season, Fairfield lost nine of ten games, but all were to strong competition, including Providence, Army and Eastern Connecticut State. The strong schedule prepared the team for the challenges of the MAAC Tournament, where they knocked off St. Peter's, La Salle and Canisius (twice). Senior Kim Zagajeski showed fine form in both Canisius wins, holding one of the nation's best hitting teams to three runs in two games, including a 1-0 shutout. Overall, she was 7-7 with an impressive 1.81 ERA and one no-hitter. Classmates Linda Mazzella and Heidi Blade also were key contributors. Mazzella returned from a broken leg to bat .262, connected for five home runs and drove in a team leading 22 runs. Blade had an identical .262 average and was a standout catcher for the Lady Stags. Zagajeski was named to the Division I All-New England All-Star team for the second year in a row while Mazzella and Blade were selected as honorable mentions to that team. For her efforts, Zagajeski was chosen as the MAAC Tournament MVP and Fairfield head coach Bo Zito was voted the league's Coach o the Year.

The future appears to be optimistic for Fairfield softball. Sophomor Heather Beauton pitched her way t a 6-4 record and an incredible 0.7 ERA in games. Classmate Heather Boguslawski moved from shortstop t second base and looked good in th field and at the plate, committing only five errors and batting .288. Sh also posted a .462 batting average i the MAAC Tournament. Boguslawsk also showed the ability to put the ba in play, striking out only two time in 120 plate appearances. Freshma pitcher Sue Habinowski was 3-4 an walked only four batters in 55 inning in her rookie season.

MEN'S BASEBALL

The Stags qualified for their first ECAC appearance in nine years, capturing the MAAC South with a 13-3 record and posting a 20-15- 2 overall ledger. Fairfield had several major victories over the course of the season, and were led by a good mix of youth and experience.

The experience came mainly from senior pitcher Steve Becker, who hurled a pair of one-hit shutouts (vs. St. Peter's and Iona) and led the staff with a 4-3 record and 51 strikeouts. Junior Chris Roberge also was 4-3, and his win over Manhattan on April 28 clinched the MAAC South title. At the plate, juniors Keith McCall (.354 BA, 23 stolen bases) and Ed Kiernan (.371, 31 RBI) had fine seasons, as did seniors Rob Banasiak, Joe Greiner and Fran Maurais, all of whom batted above .270.

The youth corps was led by sophomore Luis Garcia, whose .422 batting average and five home runs topped the Stags, and enabled him to rank among the national leaders in batting average. The sophomore pitchers combined for an 8-5 record and five saves. The five saves were all by Scott Larkin, which equalled a school record. Overall, nine of Fairfield's 10 pitchers earned at least one victory, and more importantly for next year, all but one will return.

Highlights of the season included a six-run rally in the ninth inning to top East Carolina, a two-game sweep of UNC-Wilmington, a five run rally to topple Iona 5-4 and three one-hitters, two by Becker and one by sophomore Bill O'Donnell (vs. Manhattan).

CALL IT HOME SWEET HOME!!

"What is townhouse living like?", asked an inquiring freshman. "Well," I said, "It's like having your own apartment but your parents are still paying most of your bills!" But TH living is more than just the freedom of having your own kitchen, bathroom, living room, bedroom, dining room, and cellar; TH living is home. Once I moved to the townhouses I realized that I was almost ready to move out of my parents home and into my own. I learned alot from my housemates about living on my own. #l You must pay your utility and phone bills on time or bye-bye heat and lights. #2 You must clean the toilet and shower because green mildew isn't real attractive. #3 Cooking does not exclusively mean baking brownies every week, Chicken can be fried and baked not just bought in the deli. and above all #4 Home is what you make it. It is where you are comfortable to be you. A TH is home . . . Fairfield is home.

SIBLINGS ON CAMPUS

I distinctly remember that day last April when my little brother opened his acceptance letter from Fairfield University. I guess, at first, I was a bit skeptical, after all, Fairfield was MY SCHOOL! Many strange questions and ideas began to pop into my head such as "How am I supposed to have fun if my baby brother is at the same party as I am?" and "Aha, my parents finally have a little spy to keep tabs on me."

As the possibility of his attendance at Fairfield became a reality, I resolved my fears with the idea that we would never see each other. Since I live in the townhouses and he lives in the dorms, we surely wouldn't have to worry about any awkward on-campus meetings. I did, however, want to be available in case my freshman brother needed assistance from his older, more mature, senior sister; so I allowed him to have my phone number.

When school was in full swing a strange thing happened. I actually began to enjoy my brother's company. We would talk about mutual friends, go out to dinner together, and even party with each other. I'll never forget the time that I asked him to drive me and my friends to happy hour and pick us up when we were ready to go. He actually consented without a word and walked all the way up to the townhouses to drive us.

As this year has progressed, my brother and I have learned a lot about each other. When you live at home with your siblings I really don't think you get to know them. But he and I were given the opportunity to really become close and I wouldn't trade that for the whole world. Now, I no longer refer to him as my little brother; but rather, as one of the best friends I could ever have!

"We don't compete, I'm just naturally better it's a fact!"
"Sisters are your best friends, especially mine!"
"He may have a better GPA than me but I do more!"
"We don't look alike do we?"
"What a Friend!"

THE MEN WITH A MISSION!!

This year security at Fairfield has been beefed up, after some attacks occurred on campus last year. A new security system was placed on all the dorms. After 7:00 pm students needed an ID to enter the building and after 11:00 pm, they needed an ID specific to that dorm. Although some bugs still need to be worked out, the system seems to be a success. Security also had to crack down on townhouse drinking, following the possible banning of kegs letter of Fr. O'Neil. The security guards on campus are often regarded as the college students worst enemy but in most cases the guards are just doing their job and understand what it is like to be in college. Remember, Boys and Girls security is our friend!

What a Life!

What is life like living at the beach? was the question we asked and here are some very common answers I received: "Well, it's as close to heaven as one can come.", "It's great, I don't want to leave it! It is the last time in my life that I have no expenses and live without a care, well, I'm as free as a seagull!" and another one was "It's a constant party man, This is living!"

After hearing these replies I wondered if I wasn't a fool for having spent my four years on-campus at Fairfield. But heck, who needs sun, sand, salt water, and seagulls? Not me! I'm perfectly content to be on campus with a duck pond, green grass, fresh mulch, and one can't forget Fairfield security around to keep an alert eye on things! No matter where you lived here at Fairfield, I would bet that you were happy in your own way. But this University is lucky to have the beach opportunity and let's hope that the beach party — Clam Jam tradition will live on as long as this university is open, after all this is COLLEGE isn't it?

SENIOR WEEK 1991

Where Are We Bound For?

Senior Week began on May 15th but the Senior festivities began on the last day of classes when the Senior/Jesuit Social was held in the Oak Room. Many Jesuits showed up to bid the class of 1991 a sad farewell, while many seniors showed up to drink at the first and only free-alcohol event. Senior Week began with a bang on Wednesday after Graduation rehearsal meetings with the Senior Brunch. The food was good and the weather was even better. Students ate with their faculty and friends and seemed happy until they ran out of champagne. But not to worry because Pub night was that evening and what a night to remember that was . . . That is if you could remember it! Unbelievably the weather was beautiful for the Senior picnic with the Hawaiian motif on Thursday. Many did not seem to want to remove their dark sunglasses. Funny, I don't know why, the music was loud with the sounds of All the Voices and the BBQed food could be smelled for miles. Hmmm . . . perhaps some seniors weren't feeling well after Mardi Gras in the C.C. The week ended as great as it had started every day was perfect beach weather even graduation. The Senior-Semi-Formal was the only event that saw some rain and it only lasted for about an hour then stopped so that no one had to walk home in it. The slide show was excellent and many seniors began to bid farewell to their colleagues that night. Some tears were noticed but the overall atmosphere was anxiety toward the uncertain future. The Parent's Dance ended the week of fun as all seniors said thank-you to their parents in their unique styles. The students and their parents danced until 1:00 am and then retired to rest before the big day. All and all senior week 1991 was a great success and I hope all of us finds the answer to that annoying question, "Where are we bound for?"

Seniors gatherd together from the beach, the townhouses, the dorms, and from their towns to celebrate the upcoming graduation day. The festivities brought the class closer together, too bad it was so late; but we all are thankful for our time at Fairfield and the memories are with us forever even if our friends can't be.

FAIRFIELD

SENIOR WEEK

All the events were a hit! It started with the brunch, which included speakers such as Dr. Orman (teacher of the year), Father Leeber and Chris McSherry's farewell. FUSA did an excellent job all year and the reality of graduation hit as people talked about how much they would miss Fairfield and their friends. Good Luck Class of 1991!

FAIRFIELD
UNIVERSITY

Commencement of the Class of 1991!!!

When I was first asked to speak to the graduating class of Fairfield University, my initial reaction was not too dissimilar to a certain philosophy professor who is a member of the faculty here. I had to ask myself, what makes me qualified to do this? What relevance do I have to the future lives of these young people? After all, I didn't even go to college. And I did write a song called "Only The Good Die Young!" So, why me?

Well after meeting with a group of Fairfield students, I realized what I might be able to share with you from my perspective. I have lived what many would consider to be an unorthodox life, but it has always been an interesting one.

It is true that I didn't graduate from High School, but, like you, I did spend years majoring in my own area of study. I am a graduate of the University of Rock and Roll, Class of 1970. My diploma was a check, a week's worth of wages earned from playing long nights in smokey, crowded clubs in the New York area. Through the years, I've been given platinum albums, grammys, keys to cities, and many other awards which are considered prestigious in my profession. But the greatest award I have ever received was that check, my diploma, made out to Billy Joel in 1970. This particular check was enough to cover my rent and my expenses. It was also enough to convince me that I no longer needed to work in a factory or be a short order cook or pump gas or paint houses, or do any of the other day jobs I'd had to do in order to make ends meet. That check meant that I was now able to make a living solely by doing the thing that I loved most — making music. It meant that I had become self-reliant as a musician. I will never forget that day. I consider it to be one of the most important days in my life.

I also remember the 21 year old Billy Joel and I often wonder what it would be like if we could, somehow meet each other. Here I am at 42, exactly twice his age. What would I think of him? Would I find him to be naive, arrogant, simplistic, crude, noble, hopelessly idealistic? Perhaps all of these things. But more important, what would he think of me? Have I fulfilled his dream? Have I created the kind of music he would have wanted to have written? Have I compromised any of his ideals? Have I broken any of the promises I made to him? Have I lost the desire to be the best he could be? Would he be disappointed in me? Would he ever like me?

That 21 year old has been the biggest pain in the neck I have had to endure in my life. Yet he has had more influecne on the work I have done than anyone else for the last 21 years. He has been my greatest teacher, my deepest conscience, my toughest editor and my harshest critic. He has significantly shaped my life. I can say to you today that what you are at this moment in our lives, you will always be in your hearts. And in your necks.

When I met with your fellow students, they asked me what is the most powerful lesson I have learned. After 11 years of classical training, I learned to play the piano, but I realized that I was not destined to be another Van Cliburn. And I learned to write songs, although what I really wanted to write were symphonies like Beethoven. I have learned to perform but somehow I knew I would never be able to move like Michael Jackson or sing like Ray Charles.

Out of respect for things that I was never destined to do, I have learned that my strengths are a result of my weaknesses, my success is due to my failures and my style is directly related to my limitations. You see, the only original things I have ever done have been accidents, mistakes, flubs, foul-ups, and their attendant solutions. I have an interent talent for stumbling onto something. I am an expert at making bad choices and illogical decisions. I have discovered that after all those years of musical instruction, after all that practice to be perfect, after all that hard work trying to compose the right notes, that I am gifted with the knack of hitting exactly the wrong notes at precisely the right time.

This is the secret of originality. Think about it. You may have learned all there is to know about reproducing the art of someone else, but only you can commit a colossal blunder in your own exquisite style. This is what makes you unique. But then you are faced with solving the problem. This is what makes you inventive. Commit enough blunders and you become an artists. Solve all the problems you've created and they will call you a genius.

I have learned that no matter how successful or proficient or accomplished I might think I am, I am always going to make mistakes. I will always have to face some difficulties. I am always going to have to deal with the possibility of failure. And I will always be able to utilize these things in my work. So I am no longer afraid of becoming lost, because the journey back always reveals to me something new about my life, and about my own humanity, and that is, ultimately, good for the artist.

Now these same students also asked me if I set out to make it "to the top" or if I set out to be wealthy. If all I desired was wealth, then all I would have made was money. If all I set out to do was make it to the top, then all I would have been was number I, a good number, but still only a number. What I set out to do was to be very good at what I do for my own satisfaction. As it turned out, being very good has a great deal of value to people and that value in turn brought me to the top and also brought me financial success. But these things are merely by-products and not ends in themselves. Ivan Boesky and Michael Milliken made money and made the world a poorer place. Milli Vanilli made it "to the top", but made a mockery of music. I have derived much more happiness from making music than from making money. Although, if I had taken a few courses in accounting, I might have derived more satisfaction as well as more money.

Since this is the 450th anniversary of the founding of the Jesuit Order and the 500th Birthday of St. Ignatius, in the spirit of the Jesuit ideal, you have chosen "service to the community and service to others" as your theme. This is an enlightened goal. I am celebrating the 50th birthday of Bob Dylan, and as Bob said "You gotta serve somebody". Through my work, I have had the opportunity to travel the world, and in doing so, realized that I can't save it — not the whole thing anyway. But I have tried to protect and preserve a tiny little part of it. I have had the honor and privilege of using my good fortune to help others. I am not quite sure how one measures service. I'm sure we would all like to do more. However, if you do what you can, when you can, and sometimes when you can't, perhaps that is enough. I would ask you to understand that the greatest service you can do for others is to fulfill your own heart's desires and become the best that you can be for yourselves. Even though you will fall down and foul up and make mistakes as I have, as everyone does, you will make this world a better place if you can bring to it your own unique and individual excellence and quality and originality. This is your gift to give. This is the greatest service you can render to your community and to others.

Before I wind this up, I would like to thank those same students for revealing to me one of life's small secrets. I have been traveling for 25 years and I have faced more junk food and hamburgers than most people I know. I am sure that at one time or another, you have all been faced with trying to get ketchup out of a new bottle onto your junk food of choice. I never knew there was an easy way to get the ketchup out of a new bottle, but these students showed me how. For me this was one of life's small triumphs — a great mystery revealed. In sharing their secret with me, I know I will never have to dread the new ketchup bottle again. This might seem like a very small and trivial bit of information to share, but for me it meant a few less frustrating moments in my life. This is important to me. So please don't ever misjudge the importance or relevance of what you know and what you've learned. It is important to someone, somewhere.

I hope that you all will appreciate small triumphs like this throughout your lives. I think you will find that great, historic feats are rare, but the joy of life is made up of obscure and seemingly mundane victories that give us our own small satisfactions, our own personal pleasures, and our own momentary revelations. Thank you for inviting me here to speak today, I am very proud to accept the honor you are bestowing upon me. I will cherish the memory of that young musician getting his first paycheck 21 years ago. Welcome to the fire — now it's your turn to hold the hose. Good luck to all of you. Thank you.

FAIRFIELD

Catch the Wave!

The audience at the 41st Commencement Ceremony was brought back to that first day at Fairfield when the theme was Catch the Wave. This memory was expertly placed in everyone's mind by the Valedictorian, Annemarie Randazzo. Annemarie eloquently demonstrated to the Class of 1991, that the spirit and strength that we find in oursleves was obtained from our personal experiences on the crest of that enormous wave. We learned from that wave and became what we are today. After this heartwarming speech the Honorary Degrees were conferred on Superior Court Judge Ellen Bree Burns, Astronomer Martin F. McCarthy, S.J., X-President of the Federal Reserve Bank, Paul A. Volcker, and singer, Billy Joel. And it was obvious, at least to this student, that these people represented the spirit of the wave, even if they didn't attend Fairfield University. Remember all of you, that wave is in your heart and these memories will remain there forever; so go out there into the real world and Catch a New Wave of your very own.

In Retropsect . . .

Looking back over my four years here at Fairfield, I see that I have had many good times, as well as, bad; but, yes, I learned from every "classic blunder" that I created and every good experience I ever had. The memories will live in me forever and I will always be thankful to Fairfield University for teaching me how to stand on my own two feet. I gained confidence in my work, my relationships, and particularly in myself. But, without certain people that I would now like to thank, I wouldn't have been able to make it to "true responsible adulthood". First, I would like to thank my housemates: Karen, Annmarie, and Kim, who put up with me and my yearbook problems all year. Second, I would like to recognize my advisor, Jim Fitzpatrick and his Campus Center helpers, Jan and Jean; without your help I would have been lost. Third, my staff deserves alot of credit for sticking with it, especially Lisa, Thomas, and Val without you there wouldn't be a yearbook because I would have lost my mind long ago. Fourth, my good friends for their support and interest in yearbook: ADZ, the Globs, TH 132, TH 57, Smitty, my summer weekend visitor, and thanks to you Sean Flynn for giving me the opportunity to prove my determination. Lastly, I must thank the one group of people without whom, I could never survive: my family. The Belcher's deserve alot of credit, they put up with alot. Thanks Mom and Dad for everything, I love you! Well, that's it, I hope you enjoy it! Good Luck and may success be yours.

I don't know what your destiny will be,
but one thing I know,
the only ones among you who will be really happy are those who have sought and found how to serve.
